But you, when you knew-that I must go, Grew coider and colder; then came the snow If I wanted cmen5; here)was one: No flowersjnow, no Summer sun Andjrrou, who used to be so merry, Distantand strange. If I had begun By holding/over your heada cherry And saying, I will give you thisy And a loving heart and a tender kiss, And guard you all the days of my life If you will promise to be my wife You d have laughed a little and tried to reach, And askedj me where I learned that speech. Out of your nursery rhymes, I take it; Well, here is my promise, --rememb.erjl make it For the sake of the cherrysir, not for you. Thenjj I should have known, what beforejl knew, That we loved each other, just as the birds Know it, without the use of words. For words seemed futile between us two; Your face, your voice, your look, your smile Told me you loved me /all the while. I think thenjwe had both been able, By saying the multiplication table, To express, our love. As the fairy fable/ Tells of a maiden/ whose mouth dropped pearls (Because she was wise and the best of girls), So whenever/ we spoke-t-it could not be stopped If we opened our mouths! then outjloveldroppecT. But it did not need that we should...
