Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Excess Profits Tax Primer To the Taxpayer: The great body of patriotic taxpayers are anxious to pay their taxes and thus fulfill their whole financial duty to the Government. This department is equally anxious to help them fulfill that duty without prejudicing their own interests or paying a larger tax than under the law they are called upon to pay. To attain this end, cooperation along the following lines is necessary: 1. File your return promptly. You have until April 1 to do this, but you will greatly assist the Government by filing your return now. This will be to your own advantage, for, if you have any problem that requires special attention, the sooner your return is in the earlier will your case be reached and decided. 2. Secure from your collector the proper return form and read carefully the instructions and questions printed thereon. Get at the same time a copy of Regulations No. 41 and use the index. When in doubt on any point, consult your collector or revenue agent, or your banker. If still in doubt, answer each question as you understand it and send with your return a statement of the questions about which you are uncertain. A decision can then be made at Washington, where the administrative authorities are as anxious to protect your interests as to obtain the revenue. In this way you will be protected against penalties. 3. If you can not determine your invested capital, or if for any other reason you believe yourself entitled to make claim for assessment under section 210 (art. 52 of the regulations), make out your return as best you can...
